

hinton high school

foreword

M. Shall

This is Hinton High School. Here each day, we come together to work and to study and to learn to live together as men ought to live. Here, we learn to respect knowledge and competence, and here we learn to love wisdom. In the road ahead, may the memories of these wonderful years when we "traveled through these realms of gold" be kept fresh and bright in the pages of this book.

dedication

MR. CLYDE A. JOHNSON

With constant awareness of his ever present kindness and true interest in his students, of his spirit of encouragement which gave to us the mutual glory of real friendship--it is to him whose instruction and helpful advice was a continuous source of inspiration we gratefully dedicate this book.

prophecy

While entertaining myself with my favorite pastime -- daydreaming -- a vision of the Senior Class of '59 twenty years from now came to me. I had just returned from an extended exploring trip to lower Slobbiovia.

Things were certainly changed. The first person I saw was Mayor David Meador. I asked him how things were going and he explained to me that he was having a rough time since Hinton had become a scientific center and the population had increased to fifteen thousand. A new council had recently been elected. Among the members were Carlos Richmond, Herbert Freeland, Thomas Turner, Doug Willey, and David Williams. I also learned that the sheriff was Bobby Tucker with Paul Pack, Charles Lilly, and Wendell Nelson as deputies.

Walking on down the avenue, I decided to go into the Big Four Drug Store. While talking to the owner, Jack Topping, I learned some more new things. Jack not only owned the drug store but also was the permanent boss of the National Football Camp's"Goon"Squad. Since he was in Hinton most of the time he was able to relate about other members of the '59 class. Gene Sentz turned out to be the town bum: Edward Smith, an engineer on the C. & O. Railroad; H. F. Cooper, a U. S. diplomat to Russia, and Margaret Carden was head nurse at the new hospital. Some of the nurses under Margaret were Helen Pack, Carol Coleman, Mary Cumby, and Nannie Kay Richmond. Roger Fox and Laura Lane were the main doctors.

Leaving the drug store, Ibought a paper from conservation officer Carlos Angell's son. On the front page of the paper there was a picture of John Webb, famous geologist and splelunker exploring in Africa. On the sports page I saw many names of old classmates. Tommy Chattin played third base for the San Francisco Giants, Fred Coffman was coach at a weightlifting school (also owner of Cox's Department Store), Bill Shorter was ping-pong champion playing in the National Olympic playoffs, and Frank Tyler was a basketball star for the Boston Celtics. From the society page I learned that Julia Allen and her family had just returned from a vacation in Hollywood where they visited actress Violet Angell. Next I noticed a picture of a lady and gentleman. Of all people, it was the very popular star Betty Reed and her body guard, Roy Thompson. Another picture was of Elizabeth Eades who overshadowed Brigett Bardot.

Suddenly there was a loud explosion so I went to the laboratory on top of the mountain to see what had happened. Among the spectators I met Patty Deaver, Mary Smith, Geralding Arthur and Sue Bartgis who had married and were living at Hinton. When the crowd was gone, I was invited by the guard to visit the lab. Inside I met Leon Angell who was working on Einstein's Theory of Love Making and Arthur Lilly, Roger Neely, and Joe Bennett who were very famous for their amazing discoveries.

After leaving the lab, I journeyed down the street admiring the modern stores. First I passed a real estate agency run by Bob Hogan. Bob plays pro football with Detroit as a hobby. Sue Miller, I saw, was a stock broker for Miller's Department Stores which were located on the moon. The YMCA was getting very much business under Secretary Bill Mann.

Since I had left my energy pills at home, I went into Jane Meador's restaurant for a nice quiet meal, Well, I thought it would be quiet until I learned that Nancy Charlton and Jack Crook were entertaining with compositions by Don Williams.

My next visit was made to dear old Alma Mater. As I entered the door, I saw Jo Lynn Burks and couldn't imagine what she was doing there. Jo and I began chatting about old times, and I learned that she had become principal and that some other classmates were teaching there. Phyllis Meadows was famous for teaching etiquette. She was regarded much better than Emily Post had ever been. Tony Ratliff was a mathematician who had finally worked out a method to trisect an angle. Frank Sims and Kent Cales were the English teachers. Clayton Smith was the boys' dean; and Wanda Richmond, girls'. Kyle Abshire was the band director. Swanson Carter was custodian of Memorial Gym and was known for his sleeping ability. Emmett Furrow, the assistant, could not sleep much when on the job since Swanson snored so loudly. Ferrell Burdette drove a jet-mobile which transported children to school.

Jo also told me about some friends who were not at the school. Diane Abbott was the owner of the U.S. Cadillac Corporation; Valeria Bolling, a teacher in Kay Bryson's dancing school; Carol Carpenter, a teacher of driving safety in a New York driving school, and Bobby Brydie, the manufacturer of Pyrex test tubes.

Not having time to visit around anymore that day, I decided that I had better get a hotel room. The Bolling Hotel looked like a good place to stay, so I went in. Was I ever surprised to learn that C. R. Bolling was the owner. At the desk I met Carol Ferguson who told me that U. S. President-elect, Judi Lilly, was also staying there that night. In the lobby I saw Ronald Jones, disc jockey for station PLT. Darrell Lilly was the owner of the station. Ronald told me that Douglas Houchins owned the new TV station in Hinton. The best liked show starred the "Lillys" -- Geraldine, Juanita, and Sharon.

After a good night's sleep, I was ready for a hearty breakfast, I was served in bed by waitress Peggy Lane. When I had eaten, I noticed a book lying on the table. Never in my life would I have expected Maxie Hinkle to write a book. WRESTLING AT ITS BEST was very interesting, but I did not have time to finish reading it.

When down in the lobby again, I met Hollywood playboy Clacy Goff watching Mary Reed and Becky Neely on the Smella-Television. He was really being affected by their perfume. Turning around, I saw Maynard Richardson; a hotel employee, walk in.

prophecy

Deciding to visit again that day, I started down the street, Millionaire Billy Woods and Laura Nelson were getting out of their limousine which was driven by Tommy Doyle, Standing on the corner was Jerry Fitzwater, owner of the chain of A & P grocery stores, From him I learned that there was a meeting of the business men at the Memorial Building. Thinking I might see some old friends there, I lefthim like a flash. I was right, I met Roger Grimmett, president of the National Association of Teen Towns; Steve Surbaugh, owner of the Ritz Theatre; Butch Bennett, celebrated lawyer who was famous in divorce cases; Warren Holbert, wealthy owner of the C. & O. Railroad; Charles Carmean, A C & O official; Gary Clark, owner of the large chain of grocery stores; and Bobby Crook, seller of Crooked Insurance.

Nilia Gill was coming out of an office as I was starting to leave, I inquired as to where I should go next, and she said that I must visit the new Penitentiary at which Lynn Maddy was warden. Nilia said she would go along, so we hopped into her helicopter and was soon at our destination. Before we were allowed to enter, guard Lawana Jackson searched us to make sure we were taking no keys or files in. Superintendent Mary Lou Johnson showed us around and took us to visit the secretary, Frankie Lilly. It was certainly nice to learn that none of the '59 Seniors were inmates.

Nilia told me she was on her way to visit Lois Hartwell who had twelve children -- all boys. I went along with her. Reece Grimmett, I learned, was a gambler on a Mississippi River boat. Other interesting facts were: Drema Richmond was a model for Kessler's; Robert Adkins, a professional lover; Max Crawford, a band leader in New York; Sarah Deeds, a stern house mother at a girls' college in France; Ricky Eades, a conservationist and agriculturist on his farm at Marie; and Jim Simms, a jet pilot.

At Lois's house I saw Phyllis Ratcliff and her triplets. She lived next door so I went to see her lovely house. While I was there, Jimmy Jones, professional photographer for the HINTON DAILY NEWS came to take a picture of the triplets on their tenth birthday. Jimmy told me that Billy Lilly introduced the hula-hoop to the Moonmen and was very wealthy.

During our conversation, I discovered that Rachel Richmond had become very famous for her hair styles and was working for Turner Movies in Hollywood. Marilyn and Nancy are the owners.

It seemed as if I would never hear anything about Ellen Tickle, Jane Westmoreland, and Sue Willy so I excused myself and went to ask Elvin Stephenson, the world's most intellectual living man, about them. He said that Ellen was a housewife; Jane, owner of Westmoreland's Oil Company in Texas; and Sue was in Spain teaching English. Inot only found out about these but also others. Mary Willey and her husband were missionaries on the moon. Gary Wilson was playing pro football with the Los Angeles Rams; Nina Williams had become a famous writer; Janet Yancey, a housewife; and Kay Brooks was writing poems for Life Magazine.

I was not surprised when I learned that Wanda Pack owned a diamond shop, but I was surprised when I came to my senses and saw Mr. Maddy coming my way. Oh, another lecture on daydreaming!
