EDITORIAL

After many days of toil and sleepless nights another "Dart" is ready for the press. The work, although long and difficult, has not been at all unpleasant.

This volume of the "Dart" is issued by the Seniors to the friends of the Hinton High School, not as a work of art or literature, but as a record of the student life for the past year, and we hope the following pages will give you pleasure and increase your interest in H. H. S. If we accomplish this our work will not be in vain.

It has been our aim to make each senior directly responsible for some part of this book. Although we are young and inexperienced we do not apologize for this issue for we have put our best efforts into its production and hope to give you the best number of the "Dart" that has even been published. As the school grows we feel that the "Dart" must keep pace with its development. Our enrollment has not only increased but also there has been an improvement in every phase of the school work. The student body is alive, enthusiastic and interested. This is shown by more class spirit, closer ties of friendship among classmates and better fellowship between teachers and students than ever before.

Every effort has been made to make our chapel exercises both interesting and instructive. Through the united efforts of our worthy Superintendent and Principal we have had the pleasure of listening to some very able speakers. The home talent has been unusually good and every time we have assembled there we have heard something worthwhile. Many improvements have also been made in the class work. We hope you will note as much improvement in the "Dart" as we have in the school.

The Editor-in-Chief wishes to take this opportunity to thank each one of the staff for their interest and co-operation in this publication. He also wishes to express appreciation to the business men of Hinton and to the citizens of the town who by their hearty support, have made possible this issue of the "Dart."

—EDITOR-IN-CHIEF.

Senior History

On the third day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand nineteen hundred and seventeen a momentous event was recorded in the history of the Hinton High School. The people on the outside only knew that we were seventy-four in number. They knew nothing of our possibilities.

Time and space is entirely inadequate for the stupendous task of unfolding the glories of the class of '21, so but little more than a bare outline can be given here.

Our class is unusual in that for three years we have had the same class adviser, Miss Jordan, and it is certainly partly due to her untiring efforts that we now stand before you as Seniors.

During our four years in high school we have been well represented in all athletics participated in by the high school students. In the three years just past a goodly part of the basket ball, football and baseball teams have been made up of boys from our class, and this year the greatest interest has been shown toward everything along this line by two of our three boys, namely Herman, our President, and Bob, our ex-President.

The fact that there are ten girls to one boy does not alter the truth that we are an ideal class but only goes further to prove it.

In the theatrical world we are certainly not lacking in ability for: Did we not with the aid of the teachers and the Normal class have the greatest of success with our Senior Play, and again we have on several occasions displayed our talent and ability to the entire school by helping in the chapel programs.

Many have since that wonderful day four years ago dropped out and it is only another case of "the survival of the fittest." Among those who have left us, three have, to our great sorrow, gone to that great unknown from whence no one returns. Five have, happily we hope, entered the bonds of matrimony. There are still others who have given up their school work and sought employment in the world and a few who have fallen low in the work are now members of the Sophomore and Junior classes.

The commencements we have before witnessed have been looked upon with great joy but as the day draws nearer when we are to depart from the teachers, the old familiar halls, and the battle-scarred desks of Hinton High School we begin to think that it is not all fun after all. During these four years we have all trod the self same way but now we have begun to realize that our roads will soon separate and we know not what lies before us. 'Tis true that discouragements have threatened us, the trials have been many and the way rough but we realize that it has been only a preparation for the sterner perplexities that we are about to explore. As today we bid good-bye to it we can safely say, that Hinton High has provided us with the necessary training to meet that ocean of life which is to be so entirely different from those good old school days through which we have just been passing.

Whether our ways be easy or whether they be rough and difficult, and wherever they may lead we shall each and every one try to prove ourselves worthy representatives of dear old Hinton High School.

—V. O'C., Historian.

H. H. S. Graveyard—1921 Section

Long may you live, O Seniors!
But after you collapse,
The future H. H. S. students,
Will read these epitaphs:

Here lies the remains of Herman, our president,
We wonder where he is now a resident.

There is the grave of Mary Mac,
She left the world and won't come back.

Our dear V. President, Mrs. Boyd,
A long sweet life she enjoyed.

Over there lies Harriet Whanger,
Read, the judge, couldn't hang her.

Bonnie Allen, with smile and curl,
Commonly called, "Peck's Bad Girl."

Estelle is an angel now we are sure,
Estelle, so studious and demure.

Under this stone sleeps our "Holy Nut"
Lelia Briers always was a Mutt.

And from us fair Edith has flown,
O! that she did not travel alone.

Here is the tiny tomb of Mabel,
She lived as long as she was able.

Vera Margaret O'Conner,
May "the luck of the Irish" be upon her.

Lelia Glass, cute and sweet,
Pawned her life for "fried" eats.

Tommy Hogan's grave is long and thin,
His wife killed him with a rolling pin.

Then here is Bob, famous athlete,
We are positive he didn't get cold feet.

Early to bed, early to rise,
Eleanor died eating pies.

Mary Lee Boude, the class quiz,
Didn't die minding HER biz.

Elizabeth Saunders, short and snappy,
Spent her life making "Ziney" happy.

Gussie left us without a sigh,
She didn't even stop to tell us good bye.

Willie Ratliff with eyes of brown,
We watched them as they lowered her down.

Tall and slim was Lilly Irene,
Teaching must have affected her bean.

Sallie Youell, Caesar's friend,
We trust she was happy at the end.

Ethyl Read,
Till she was "Wise."

Our beloved Susie Parry,
In this world couldn't tarry.

Gladys Coleman, the little scamp,
Successfully rivalled a "Village Vamp."

Here lies our prima donna,
Mary! Where have you gone?
We all remember when you said,
"Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

In that corner lies little Beulah,
Who spent her last days in Honolulu.

Here lies dear little Gladys Meador,
What a life her pupils lead her!

Under that tree lies Edith R,
Who tried to "hitch her wagon to a star."

Maggie M. and Ethel S. were both very nice,
But for "Anti-fat" couldn't pay the "Price."

Last but not least, comes Ethel, our poet,
Who died from hard work, but didn't know it.

—E. E. W.

"Prophecy"

One day as time was hanging heavily on my hands, I began to wonder about my schoolmates.

I had heard of the wonders of the ouija board, telling the present, past, and future, so I went and bought one so that I might learn something of interest.

It was made of white ivory, exquisitely carved. I placed it on the table and as I glued my eyes on the board it spelled out word by word the history of my old classmates, the alumni of the class of 1921 of the H. H. S.

Margaret Youell, more commonly known as "Sallie" had become Speakeress of the House in the State Legislature.

Gladys Coleman, who won first honors as the best dancer in H. H. S. was teaching the natives of Hawaii how to Jazz.

Vera Conner and Edith Clark, both graduates of the Cincinnati University of Medicine are on the staff of the Hinton Hospital.

Lelia Briers, was traveling saleswoman for the "Anti Fat Cure."

Beulah Redden, receives a good salary as writer of "Advice to Girls" in the Farmers Wife.

Willie Ratliff was doing social settlement work in Chicago.

Ethel Whitten had long been the wife of the famous "Bill."

Our old class president, Herman Fredeking, was judge of the Supreme Court of U. S., while Gussie Lilly was his private stenographer.

Jack Meadows (Maggie), the noted heavy weight of our class was traveling with the Smith's Carnival representing Eppie Hoggs, the fattest woman in three countries.

Ethel Surber, a well known church worker of Bellepoint had become president of the W. C. T. U.

After having explored Asia and Africa and all seven seas, Lilly Miller was happily sailing on the sea of matrimony.

The great novelist, Mary Boude, has published a novel "How to Talk," which is more widely read than "Cabbages and Kings."

Mabel Bannister has become a millionairess from her mother's wonderful marshmallow cake and is enjoying luxury and ease.

Elinor Early was now living in Africa with her husband who is U. S. ambassador there.

Elizabeth Saunders has won a gold medal for discovering that if any one over-works in high school they will be a nervous wreck at the age of 100.

Eldrige Hogan had become famous as an engineer, his record run being from Hinton to Thurmond, via the C. & O.

Gladys Meador, "the fairy of the piano," was making great preparation to visit Talcott and astonish the natives.

Edith Ratliff had attained high success as a trained nurse under whose care not more than one man succumbed each day.

Susie Parry had become the wife of a wealthy assistant insurance man.

Mrs. Boyde and Lelia Glass had gained nation wide fame as Kindergarten teachers.

Mary McCarthy and Harriet Whanger were secretary and treasurer respectively for the Arbuckle Notion Department in New York.

Ethel Reid, a very bright scholar of '21 class' had become more than bright and was "Wise."

Mary Kerby, the great opera singer of America is preparing to tour the Orient.

Robert Hartford had become a famous ball player and made many points for U. S., when he played in the Olympic games.

Bonnie Allen, had made a revised Arithmetic Book in which says, "Two pecks make a bushel."

I had read enough, I had read too much for it had spelled out mine, "OLD Maid"—Estelle Armstrong.

Class Will

We, the members of the Senior Class of the Hinton High School, in the year of nineteen hundred twenty-one, being of sound body and mind, do hereby make our last will and testament in which we bequeath to the following, our worldly possessions.

First. When we depart from our beloved mother earth and sail out into uncertain regions, we desire that our bodies be pickled and kept in the Lab. for use of the future chemists of H. H. S.

Second. When our friends have had time to discuss fully our good and bad points, we wish our possessions to be disposed of as follows:

Herman F. bequeaths to Bertha P. his dignity also his ability as President of the Senior Class.

Bob Harford leaves his smiles and dimples to Edith Mayes to be used only in case of necessity.

Elridge Hogan does give and bequeath to Martha Cox and Clair Cooper his knowledge of Senior English, also his ability to out talk Miss Clyde.

Estelle Armstrong wills her quiet and studious ways to Margaret D., hoping she will put said things to use in the future.

Bonnie Allen leaves to Cyrus Mann and Inez Bush her curls and slick way of skipping classes.

Lilly M. bequeaths to Shirly McKinney her books containing effective methods of reducing.

Gladys Coleman wills to James Hutchinson her height, also her knowledge of American History.

Lelia Briers gives to Beth Riffe and Fannie Q. her excellent vamping qualities including her specs.

Mary Boude leaves to Catherine H. and Scott Ford her ability to ask foolish questions and hereby delay a hard lesson.

Maggie Meadows wills to Bernice C. her rosy cheeks and part of her avoirdupois.

Susie Parry bequeaths to Beulah Meadows and Charles Fox her marcelle wave.

Margaret Y. gives and bequeaths to Paul Meador and Wayne C. her temper and talent for playing Jews harp.

Elinor Early leaves to Earl Hall her cracking jaw bone and knowledge gained from the study of Literary Digest.

Vera O'Conner bequeaths to Earl Graham her sunny disposition also her smile.

To the Secretary of the next Senior Class Mary Mc. leaves the records of the Class of '21 to be used towards the betterment of their class.

Harriet Whanger bequeaths to William Arrington her prize laugh.

To Lula Maddy, Ethel Reid leaves her tactfulness in getting "Wise."

Gussie Lilly wills to Robert Bragg her primpish ways.

To Joe Bradly, Edith Ratliff bequeaths her book on "How to Write Love Letters."

Beulah Redden bequeaths to Fred Anderson her wit and fondness for baby talk.

Edith Clark gives to Pearl Meadows her curls and shyness of the opposite sex.

To Robert Arrington, Mary Kirby does give and bequeath a slice of her curiosity with hope that it will develop into a fair sized loaf.

Gladys Meador wills to Ester Charlton her musical qualities.

Lelia Glass leaves Susie Foster her winning ways.

To John Waid, Elizabeth Saunders wishes to dispose of her laboratory experiences and her ability to speak nice tender English.

Ethel Surber wills to Mary Wicker and Annes Lilly her fondness for the boys and her independence.

Willie Ratliff leaves to Harry Wickline her skill in Domestic Science, hoping he will use the same to keep his bachelor apartments in ideal shape.

To Coleman Hank, Mable Banister wishes to dispose of her indiscretion in wearing knee length skirts and her cute way of making eyes at the boys.

Finally: We, the lady and potato bugs of the Senior Class will and bequeath to the members of the Freshman Class our seats in chapel and the best pencil sharpener in study hall, and to the Sophomore Class we bequeath our good nature, and books in general.

MEMBERS OF SENIOR CLASS OF 1921.

BUTLER'S SIX TESTS

In an address delivered to a body of students at the first college assembly of the present term Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, gave six tests by which one might determine whether he is being educated or whether he is accomplishing in the university what he set out to do or whether the university is doing what is expected of it? These tests are as follows:

"Ask yourselves, am I gaining in correctness and precision in the use of the mother tongue? Am I gaining in those refined and gentle manners which are the expression of fixed habits of thought and conduct? Am I gaining in the power and habit of reflection? Am I gaining in sound standards of feeling and appreciation? Am I gaining in the power of growth? Am I gaining in the power to do more efficiently?

The tests given by this celebrated scholar and teacher strike at the root of the whole matter of education and should be very seriously considered by every young man and woman seeking to lay a right foundation upon which to erect the superstructure of a life worth while.

Never has there been a class
Us in brilliancy could surpass.

Our class, though small,
Is great withal.

Respect we know will never lack
For Bigony, Boyd, and Mrs. Jack.

Mary and Margaret, as you see,
Excellent teachers have grown to be.

As for Gladys, her winning ways
Will help her pupils on rainy days.

Last, but not least, is Virginia fair.
She has many good traits and is always there.

Commencing early in September
Those busy days we'll long remember—

Learning Earhart's Types of Teaching,
Onward, upward, ever reaching,

Anxious now to try our skill
Our real destiny to fulfill.

Seven started, six survive,
Who on practice teaching thrive.

So from our motto we'll not swerve,
Ever remembering, "That we may serve."

THAT WE MAY SERVE

A ship without a rudder is at the mercy of wind and wave. If conditions of the sea are favorable it may reach a desired destination; but this is rarely the case. A good sea captain would not risk his ship and cargo to the changes of the weather. He would make every part of his ship safe for the journey.

Training is dangerous without the safeguard of noble purpose. A trained mind without vision of its purpose and use makes one sordid and selfish. The secret of usefulness and happiness lies on the possibility of bringing all the powers of being in obedience to the mandates and instincts of unselfish service.

The world champions and heroes are impelled by noble and unselfish purpose to help the helpless and make the burden lighter for those who are burdened. Jesus, the world's greatest and noblest champion, said: "The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and give his life a ransom for many!" His motive was service and the record he left was, "He went about doing good."

At the beginning of the year the Normal Class selected "That We May Serve" as our motto and we have worked faithfully toward this end. As we take up our work as real teachers in real schools, we shall not be satisfied merely to wield the rod from eight to four, but we shall strive constantly to raise the standard and serve the people in the community in which we are located.

Foreward to Organization of a Club for the Recognition of Inter-Scholastic Contestants

So far as records show or as far as the present high school faculty has been able to determine there has not been here before any official letters awarded by this school though there have been many athletes in former years on different high school teams of this city who were justly deserving. But after having finished a full and successful football season, this faculty (feeling that the students desire some recognition should be given to those who help bring credit to our school through clean athletics) hereby make the following rules whereby letters can be awarded to the students of Hinton High School Inter-Scholastic Teams and those persons who help promote the same.

HERMAN FREDEKING

To Hinton High, Herman came,
Hoping to add laurels to his name.
And that is why it came to pass,
Herman is president of our class.

BONNIE ALLEN

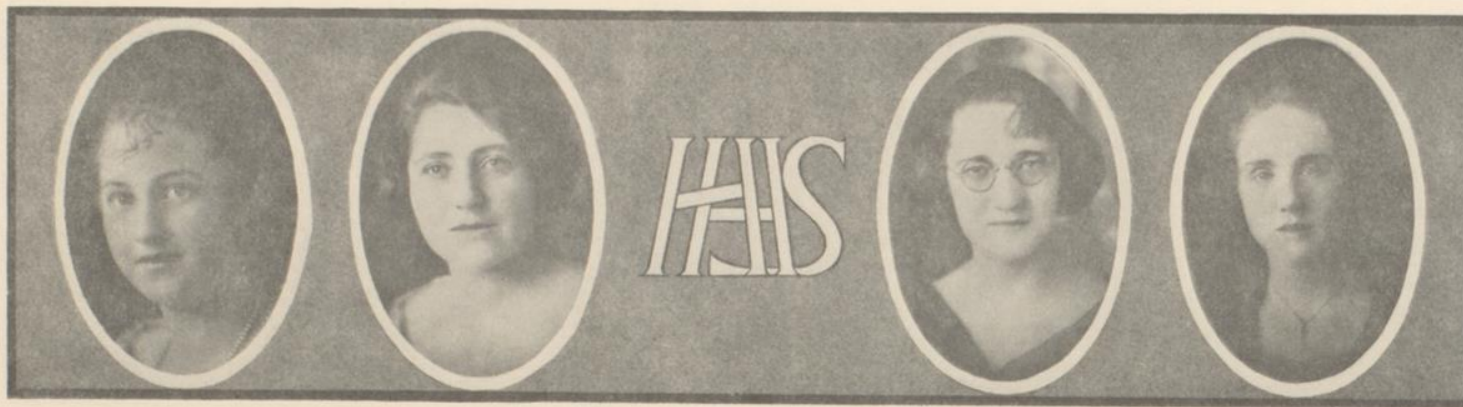

A beautiful and happy girl,
With step as light as summer air,
Eyes glad with smiles, and brow of pearl,
Shadowed by many a careless curl.

ESTELLE ARMSTRONG

Estelle is an industrious girl,
A friend both true and kind,
She'll do just anything for you,
And never seem to mind.

MABLE BANNISTER

Mabel was sweet and very bright;
She always studied late at night,
As getting lessons was her forte,
She got good grades on her report.

MARY BOUDE

Mary is an adorable girl,
She's worth her weight in gold,
But if perchance she'd take the flue,
Her Medicine Man would pull her through.

MRS. BOYD

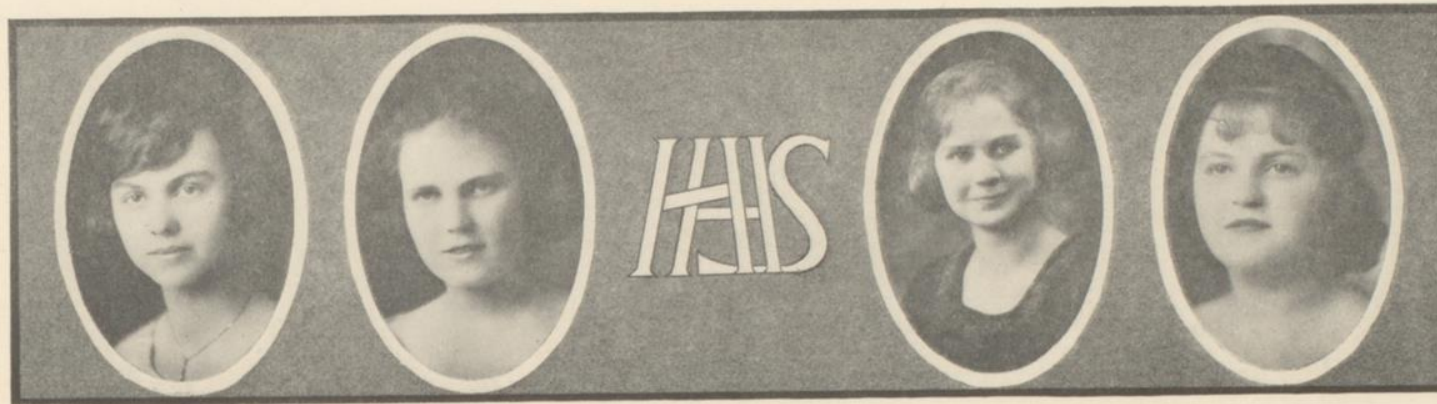

A perfect woman nobly planned
To warm, to comfort, and command,
And yet a spirit still and bright
With something of an angel bright.

LELIA BRIERS

Our High School warbler was blue-eyed Lelia,
She lived in a gay and social era,
She always dreaded examination,
But did quite well at recitation.

EDITH CLARK

Edith wore a studious look,
Was never seen without a book,
Examinations she never took,
And was known to be a famous cook.

GLADYS COLEMAN

With rosy cheeks and beaming eyes,
She comes to school each day,
With no complaint she does her work
In her sincere and charming way.

VERA O'CONNOR

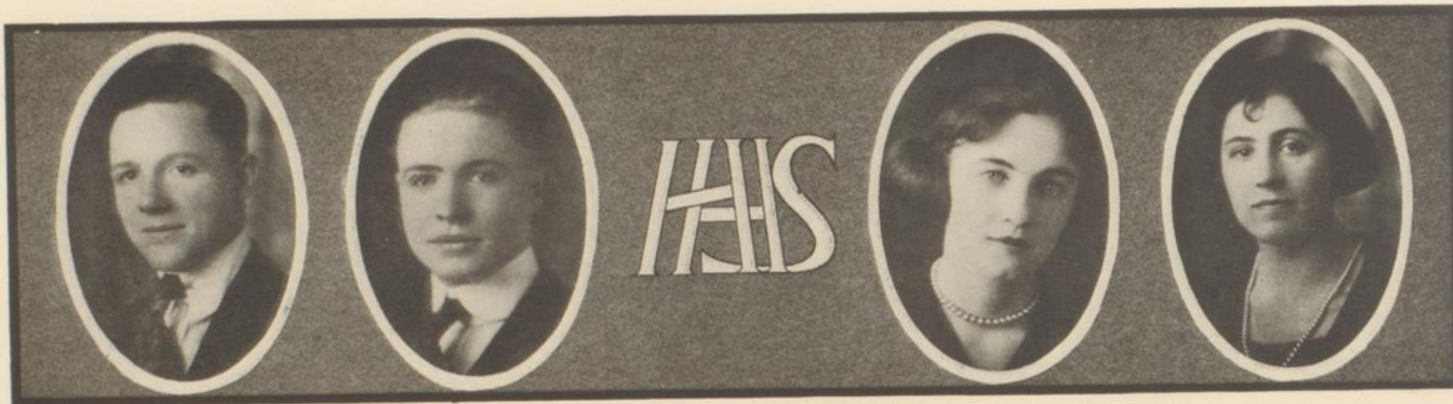

Her cheeks are so rosy and plump,
She's a wonder to behold,
She's shy, yet full of fun,
And she's not the least bit cold.

ELINOR EARLY

"Tall, stately and fair to behold,
A wonderful maid all told."

LELIA GLASS

"With eyes of blue and hair of brown,
She is the sweetest girl in town."

ROBERT HARFARD

The coach said to Bob, "Now first of all,
The bigger they are, the harder they fall."
So that is why behind the line,
This big little man stops them every time.

THOMAS HOGAN

A man of deeds,
Not words, we find
Alas, not many,
Of his kind.

MARY KERBY

"Why don't you speak for yourself, John?"

GUSSIE LILLY

Slow but sure, sound and steady,
When "Happy" is there Gussie is always ready,
She studies hard and knows quite well,
That knowledge one can't buy or sell.

GLADYS MEADOR

Gladys is our quiet lass,
She is always good in class,
And never fails to do the right
For she studies with all her might.

MAGGIE MEADOWS

Of all the girls of the Senior Class
There are few so frank as this good-humored lass.
She has a smile for all, a frown for none,
'Cause "Jack" is the friend of everyone.

MARY McCARTHY

She is exceedingly bright and full of wit,
And always on hand to do her bit.
Indeed you say, "Quite a jolly lass,
To be the Secretary of her class."

LILY MILLER

Here's one of the stars of the Senior Class,
Whom only a few can ever surpass.
Altho in this issue we can't use much room,
But some day into a school teacher, Lily will bloom.

SUSIE PERRY

Here's to Susie,
May her kind be increased.
She'll hardly be quieter
When she is deceased.

EDITH RATLIFF

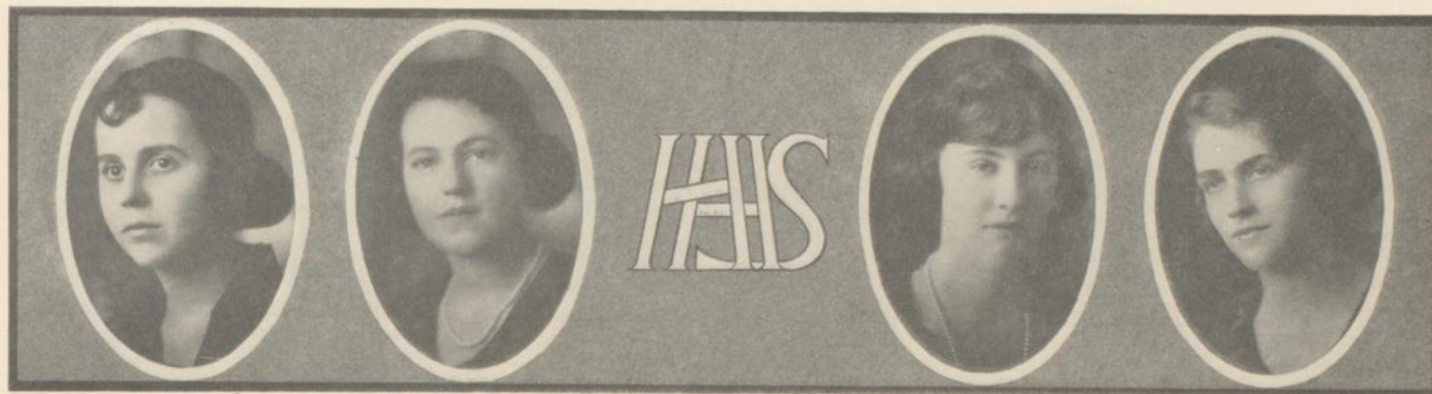

Lament in rhyme, lament in prose,
Our day with you most surely goes
So fast, we know not why
Unless it be your bright, bright eye.

WILLIE RATLIFF

Merry maid of many wiles
We like your ways, we like your smiles.

BEULAH REDDEN

Never in a hurry,
But always busy too,
She does a lot of things
For she has a lot to do.

ETHYL REID

A maid who is demure and sweet,
With voice both soft and low,
Whose smile is worth a goodly treat,
Whose dress is always "so."

ELIZABETH SAUNDERS

For Eps has such a face
And such a mien,
As to be lov'd
Needs only to be seen.

ETHEL SURBER

Some like pink, some like blue,
But for Ethel only one color will do.
What was that someone said?
I'll just tell you, it's a bright brick "Red."

HARRIETT WHANGER

You'd never guess she is so wise,
To look at her mischievous eyes,
But if the teachers questions ask,
She's always equal to the task.

ETHEL WHITTEN

A shark at her books,
Sweet and sunshiny, too,
There's only one thing she'd really like to do,
To obtain a job as "Bill's" cook.

MARGARET YOUELL

"Of all the girls that are so smart,
There's none like pretty Sally."

EVELYN BIGONY

Here's to a maiden whose hobby is psych.
While you may doubt it,
She's up and about it
Making grades you would like.

GLADYS CALE

Fairest of the lovely,
Loveliest of the fair,
Of her charms, boys,
You'd better beware.

MRS. MAUDE BOYD

(Withdrew to accept a position in the City Schools.)

MARGARET CUTTS

Now Margaret's ambitions we know
To no common grade job will she go,
But she'll show people how to bend and to bow
And develop their bodies just so.

MARY HAYNES

She lives at the "Park" and walks to school,
She's never fussed, but always cool.
She starts to school at eight-forty-eight
And always arrives just a few minutes late.

VIRGINIA McCLUNG

A maiden shy,
Demure and sweet,
Whose record would be
Hard to beat.

MRS. FLORENCE JACKSON

Here's to you,
To the purple and the gold you have been true,
To our class you've been the mother
And we would have no other,
For no other in your place would ever do.

LITTLE SUNBEAM

Not far from the city of Miami was a great colonial mansion. It was situated in the center of a large yard, bordered by cedars overhanging with mosses and vines. The mansion was of gray stone and the large overhanging verandas were covered with a bower of roses and honeysuckles. On the right side of the house was a sparkling brook, which kept up its murmuring song all day, never stopping, never tiring.

Seated under a large maple tree, by the brook, was an old man—so very old, that he was unable longer to get about but was wheeled around in a chair.

Mr. St. Clair, for he was the owner of this vast estate, was a wealthy old bachelor and a miser. All his life he had lived in this great mansion, without friends and with no desire to have any.

Now that he was growing old he felt the need of companionship, and often watched with a longing heart the little girl who passed his house day after day with flowers. Finally his desire to see her was so strong that he sent his servant one day to bring her to him.

At first the child was frightened, and would not go near him, but gradually curiosity took the place of fear and she allowed the old man to take her on his knee. She told him how she came to gather flowers, for her father who was an invalid, too, that they were very poor and oftentimes had to go without bread. The child's visits became more frequent, and she never passed without giving Mr. St. Clair some flowers, gathered from the green woods. The old man would watch each day for little Sunbeam, as he now called her.

One day Sunbeam did not make her appearance, and a servant was sent to see about her. On the return of the servant Mr. St. Clair learned that Sunbeam's mother was dead, and that she with her father were to be taken to the poor house. Great was the grief of the old man, when he learned this, but he was not long unhappy, for it dawned upon him that with his wealth he could keep both Sunbeam and her father, so the two came to live with Mr. St. Clair.

This act of charity as the outsiders thought it was, caused much talk, as all his life Mr. St. Clair had never helped any one. With this ray of sunshine in his life Mr. St. Clair grew younger and was able to go about without the aid of his chair. Sunbeam's father was under the care of the doctor, and with constant care he, too, within the year was well and happy. We now leave the old man and twelve year old Sunbeam seated under the willow, her arms faithfully wound around the necks of both, while the dying sun turns her chestnut curls to gold.

MADELINE PHELPS, 1924.

A FLOWER ROMANCE

No, I can't marry you, Jonquil, because my father insists on me to "Marigold," said "Rosemary," as she shyly dropped her head. "But I love you," replied the young admirer, "and if you will marry me I am sure we will live in "Sweet Peas."

The above conversation was taking place between a beautiful girl and her love. They had met in the "Morning Glory," not many days before, and now the lover, Jonquil, was begging for Rosemary's love.

On meeting Rosemary, Jonquil fell on his knees and after expressing his love for her and ending his little speech with "honey do," the maid suddenly exclaimed "Johnny jump up," for as you know Johnny was the name she gave him for Jonquil.

After many days of sweetheart bliss and secret meetings they finally decided to ignore the father's wish and be married. The day for the marriage dawned bright and fair and at "four o'clock" the wedding ceremony of Rosemary and Jonquil was performed by "Jack-in-the-pulpit." The bridesmaids, Rose, Lily, Violet, and Daisy, were there, dressed in their best, while the best man, "Sweet William," gave assistance to the groom. When they started on their honeymoon, the bride's mother, although crying, went up to her daughter and said, "Forget-me-not."

VIRGINIA BOWLING, 1924.

FOOTBALL SQUAD

Foot Ball

J. S. DUNCAN, Coach

The foot ball season opened with a game at Eastbank. The Eastbank boys were well equipped with new uniforms, while the Hinton boys had but three head-gears and some wore three or four shirts, while others wore some two or three pairs of trousers. Our boys lost the game by a score of 58-0. The loss was due mostly to inexperience in the game as there were only a few who had ever played before. The two teams ranked about the same in knowing the rules. One of our men, playing as guard ran along side of one of the opponents and didn't tackle him because he didn't know that he could.

The most appreciated victory won during this season was won by Hinton at Beckley. The score being 13-12.

* * *

The game which closed the season was played at Hinton on Thanksgiving under ideal weather conditions and before the largest and most enthusiastic audience ever attending a foot ball game in Hinton. Our boys were better equipped by this time and an improvement was noticed in their playing. The Montgomery boys were hard fighters and made the game interesting. Hinton won by a score of 20-0. The gate receipts above season tickets exceeded one hundred and twenty dollars.

The games played during the season were:

H. H. S.		Opponents
0	Hinton at Eastbank	58
13	Hinton at Montgomery	20
13	Hinton at Beckley	12
0	Hinton at Covington	26
13	Eastbank at Hinton	0
0	A. C. I. at Hinton	0
20	Montgomery at Hinton	0

This was fine for an entirely new team, as there had not been a foot ball team in this school for some years. There was not much interest shown at first but the team began to get down to real work and they made a good showing.

The line-up was as following:

Full back.....	Wilson
Right half.....	Bean
Left half.....	Foster and Riddleberger
Quarter back.....	Faulconer
Right end.....	Turner and Hays
Right tackle.....	McNeer and Halbert
Right guard.....	Wauhup

Left end.....	Bess

Subs.—Hank, Perry, Eubanks, Martufi, Ford and Fredeking.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM

Girls' Basket Ball

MISS CLYDE, Coach

The girls' basket-ball season of 1920-21 started out with a new coach who proved to be very successful. With the exception of Fannie Quisenberry and Rebecca Huffman the team was made up of girls who had never played before, but this did not prevent the team from doing good work and from being victorious in several games. Each game that the girls played was full of pep and enthusiasm. Most of the teams played were larger and heavier than the local team, but this did not keep them from putting up a good fight.

Preliminary to the regular season the girls played a series of inter-class games where as much enthusiasm was displayed as in the regular season. The first game between the seniors and juniors was won by the juniors. The sophomores and freshmen played a hard game and the sophomores were victorious. The final game between the sophomores and juniors was won by the juniors.

The local tournament took place at Montgomery on March 5. Only four girls' teams were present. The first girls' game was played by the Hinton girls and the East Bank girls and won by Hinton with a score of 12-2.

The next game Hinton played was with Montgomery, which they won with a score of 29-9. The Montgomery girls won the tournament. Oak Hill and Hinton tied for second place as each had won one game and lost one.

After the games were over many prizes which had been donated by the local merchants were distributed. Most of the prizes were won by the Montgomery people but Fannie Quisenberry received a prize for being the best player on the Hinton team.

BOYS' BASKETBALL TEAM

Boys Basket Ball

J. S. DUNCAN, Coach

The two tournaments were the new features of the season, although Hinton played other games that were just as interesting and as good. The first tournament was held at Montgomery, March 5th. The first game Hinton played at the tournament was with Ansted. The Ansted team was no match for the Hinton team as was shown by the score, Hinton won by a score of 59-7.

The next game was played with Montgomery. This was a hard fought game with both sides determined to win. On the whole it was the most interesting game of the tournament. C. Harford's ability to find the basket and Seldomridge's and Fox's good guarding were the interesting factors of the game. Hinton won by a score of 30-21.

The final game for the championship of the tournament was played with Oak Hill. This was another time when C. Harford found the basket often and Fox did good floor work. Trump was the main stand-by for Oak Hill as he made nearly every basket. Oak Hill won by a score of 31-24.

Fox of Hinton received two of the prizes at the tournament. He was awarded one as the best guard at the tournament and another as the best player on the Hinton team.

The other tournament was played at Marshall College March 11th and 12th. The first game of the tournament was played between Huntington and Hinton. The Marshall floor was one of those large ones and it could be plainly seen that Hinton was at a disadvantage. The game was fast and hard fought and when the whistle blew Huntington had won by a score of 44-20.

Hinton also played another game the following morning with Clay in order to help Marshall in gate receipts.

Charleston won first place but was hard pressed by Huntington who took second place.

This is the first year that Hinton has entered the tournament and it will do much better in entering them in the following years. This is also the first year that Hinton ever played Charleston and Huntington the same season.

Social Notes

The social season for the Dunlap Class of '21 opened its festivities with a hike to Keatley Springs on September 23. The party was made up of Seniors and invited guests, many of whom were teachers. This hike will be long remembered by those attending it.

On November 6, 1920, the Class of '21 was royally entertained by Miss Georgia Shank at her home in Huntington, W. Va. At it was not convenient for all of the class to go, they sent as representatives the best looking part of the class. They returned the following morning and all reported a wonderful time.

The Dunlap Class' first entertainment was a Hallowe'en party given at the home of Miss Lilly Miller. The Miller home was turned over to the Seniors and they decorated in the usual Hallowe'en style. Forgetting their dignity for the evening they wore gingham dresses and their hair in curls. The evening was spent in playing games and fortune telling. After a delicious lunch they departed for their homes.

On December 29, 1920, the Seniors and a few invited guests were delightfully entertained at the home of Misses Edith and Willie Ratliff. The evening was spent in games and dancing and everyone had a delightful time.

The Senior Class of '21 entertained themselves with a Smollygogeous Theatre Party at the Masonic on January 21, 1921, in celebration of the "non-flunkation" of any member of the class on examination. After the show the Seniors refreshed themselves at Rose's.

The sponsors of the class of '21, Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap, were hosts to the Senior class at a Theatre Party at the Masonic on February 4, 1921, "Cheating Cheaters," produced by the Shannon Stock Co.

After the performance the class was delightfully entertained at the Dunlap home. Dainty refreshments in class colors were served which was enjoyed by all. At a late hour the class left for their homes feeling that they were fortunate in having the Dunlaps as their sponsors.

After a very successful season the football boys of H. H. S. were treated to a sumptuous banquet, served by Miss Nell Neel and the Domestic Science Class. The Domestic Science room was very beautifully decorated with the High School colors and college pennants.

While the courses were being served the banqueters were entertained by music. At the conclusion of the repast Principal F. H. Tomkies, acting as toastmaster, called upon each letter man for a speech, to which they responded nobly.

The honored guests, Rev. F. C. Ransdall and Superintendent J. S. Bonar, made very appropriate and much appreciated talks. Everyone enjoyed a pleasant evening.

On the 24th of November the most successful play that has been given by local talent in Hinton was staged by the Senior Classes of '21, assisted by members from other classes. "On Plymouth Rock," is adapted from Longfellow's Courtship of Miles Standish. An especially enjoyable feature of the play was the songs and folk dances introduced to give the proper Puritan setting. The characters and many colored costumes looked very picturesque under the colored lighting effects. The play was well attended and the Seniors cleared about $275.00, which made this issue of the "Dart" possible.

The Senior Classes of the High School and Normal Department gave a St. Patrick's party at the home of Miss Margaret Cutts on March 17, 1921.

The house was elaborately and tastefully decorated with Shamrocks and other appropriate decorations in honor of St. Patrick's day.

The evening was spent in playing card games and dancing.

All the latest "musical hits" were well rendered by the New Hinton orchestra. After several hours of social diversion, a most delicious luncheon was served by members of the class.

Just before the party broke up all enjoyed the fun of posing for a flash light picture.

The most delightful occasion in the basket ball season occurred on March 18, 1921, when the boys and girls basket ball teams celebrated the close of the season with a movie entertainment and a banquet. The banquet took place in the Domestic Science room, which had been tastefully decorated in Shamrocks and many-colored balloons. Miss Neel, with the assistance of some of her pupils, served a delicious lunch.

After the banquet, letters were given to those who had played in half of the games of the season.

While Mr. Tomkies acted as toastmaster, the following toasts were given:

"What Basket Ball Has Meant to Me".....Fannie Quisenberry
"Au Revoir".....Robert Harford
"Review of the Basket Ball Season".....J. S. Duncan
"Basket Ball Prospects".....Clara Clyde

GOING OR GOING SOMEWHERE

An interesting story is told of Professor Huxley, the great English scientist. He had gone to Ireland to attend the British Association and had arrived late in the city of Dublin where the meeting was being held. Fearing to miss the address of the President, he hurried from the train to the station platform, jumped on a jaunting car, and said to the Celt in charge: "Drive fast, I'm in a hurry." Cabby whipped up his horse and proved to be a worthy successor of Jehu in the speed with which he drove.

Suddenly it flashed upon the mind of the passenger as he bounded about in the vehicle that he had not told the driver his destination. With a shout to overcome the rattle of the car, he called out: "Do you know where I want to go?"

"No, yer honor," was Pat's laughing reply, "but I'm driving fast all the while."

There are a good many boys who are contented to be going, especially if they are going fast, but boys of real good sense know that success in life comes not to those who are going, but to those who are going somewhere.

It sometimes takes years for a boy to make up his mind as to what his life work will be. Many young men graduate from high school and a good many also from college without a clear idea as to what career they ought to choose for themselves. They do not know what they are fitted for or what they would like to do.

But even during the years of uncertainty it is possible for boys to have a real objective in life. They need never be among those who are going, but are going nowhere in particular.

Long before a life work is decided upon, a boy may and should make up his mind to make the best man of himself of which the material will permit, and he may resolve to get the best all around training which it is possible for him to acquire.

Striving toward character and the pursuit of an education are the best possible preliminaries to any career in life.—The Visitor, Nashville, Tenn.

"When I Was Young"

One evening late in October, I was sitting gazing into the big open fire place, when I heard the children coming in from school. I heard them laughing and talking but before I had time to turn to look at them they slipped up behind me and two tiny hands were clapped over my eyes and childish voices were saying; "Oh, Grandmother, tell us a story about when you used to go to school."

After a very few moments of hesitation and thought I was soon carried back to the happy days I spent in the dear old Hinton High School.

I fully realized the children would rather hear a funny story, than a dry one, so I began to tell them about a very strange dream I had.

At that particular time there was a boy in whom I was almost as interested as I was in my studies.

"One afternoon I was sitting in study hall, deep in thought, when I fell asleep. I dreamed, I was standing by the window when I saw coming through the yard a white hearse, drawn by two big white horses and sitting on the coachman's seat was a little hunch-back dwarf all dressed in white and beside him sat Richard. They both looked at me and the dwarf raised up and said in a very stern voice, "Are you ready?" I yelled "No!", and by that time I was awakened by the laughter of the other students who were amused at me talking aloud.

"Not long after that, I went to sleep again and dreamed it was during the Christmas holidays and I had gone to New York to spend a few days with some friends. We were in a big department store, and waiting for the elevator, when it came down, out stepped the elevator boy, the very same dwarf with a white coat that I had dreamed about. He said, 'Are you ready?' I shrieked 'No' and ran outside.

"Just about that time I heard a terrible crash, the ropes had broken and the elevator had fallen to the basement, but the crash instead of the elevator falling was I who had fallen out of the seat onto the floor.

"The study hall was in an uproar of laughter and much to my embarrassment the teachers said, between bursts of laughter, 'That's twice recently, Jane, that you have refused him, I trust he will not propose again soon.'

"It was a long, long time before the dream occurred to me again, the scene was a church—flower bedecked, candle lighted and crowded. I was very much excited and rather nervous, so much so, that when a voice at my elbow suddenly, but softly, 'Are you ready?' I cried 'No!', and turned to rush out, but two strong arms pinioned and held me—"

"Oh! grandmother—what was it, who was it," the children cried.

"Just the bridegroom, whom you have been calling 'Grandfather' for some time now," I answered.

The Adventure of a Spring Hat

I was sent to a millinery store and then I was kept in a box for awhile. One day I was put on display with many other hats. People began to flock in and try me on, they seemed to have a pick on me. For three days I had no rest at all. People made all kinds of remarks, some thought I was beautiful, others would say, "I wouldn't have it." But I do not believe they wouldn't have me because I was ugly, but, because the dollars which it took to buy me were too many. The third day a real good-looking lady bought me. The money did not seem to worry her. Surely a good time was in store for me. To be worn by such a lovely girl, I knew at least I would not be continually going on other folks heads.

When I was taken to the lady's home, I was put away among other hats. These hats envied me because they had been thrown aside, and of course I felt very proud. Yet it was not so pleasant when I made my first trip on the lady's head. It was, oh, so cold, and I thought the wind would blow me away. I did not see many of my friends, for most of the people had on winter hats, which seemed to be happier than the spring hats, for they were used to the bad weather. After I had been worn several times I was laid in a big chair, and a large man sat down on me. I saw him in time but had no way to warn him! Alas! I was smashed.

I hoped my lady would have me fixed but she didn't seem to worry at all. She didn't even blame the man, but said it was her fault. My spirit was crushed, I was laid away with the other hats that were forsaken. They were deeply in sympathy with me. Of course, I was not happy but doing very well, until she brought a new hat in and laid it by my side. She then took me out and talked with her maid about fixing me up for her second best, but she gave the idea up and tossed me on the bed.

Presently her pet dog "Toodles" came in and spent a very pleasant hour playing with me. I had entirely given up then, for I was utterly ruined.

Now I am in a trash barrel, and am only here for a short time—just long enough to tell my story, for soon I am to be burned.

—THELMA DODD.

CO-OPERATION

THE PROBLEM:

To reduce the high cost of living, to combine the purchasing power of a large part of the community in one store.

THE PLAN:

The stockholders elect twelve who have entire charge of store and elect the store manager and clerks.

Just enough profit will be added to the cost of the merchandise to cover expenses and show reasonable profit.

Every six months inventory will be taken and the profit ascertained and enough of the profit will be declared as a dividend upon the stock to make it a good investment and the balance of the profit will be declared as a dividend upon the stockholder's purchases, thus furnishing our stockholders with their goods at cost plus the store expenses. The stock is sold at ten dollars a share; no one is allowed to buy goods on credit to two-thirds the value of the stock owned by them.
